AN 1831 JOURNEY FROM NEW YORK

The following story by Mrs. Harriet Row (1810-1885), wife of Gilbert Row, describing the trip from Amenia, Dutchess County, New York, is from a history of the Rowe's Corners School prepared by school children in 1941 and found in the Michigan Historical Collections, Bentley Historical Library, The University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. More recollections of this pioneer woman may be found in Michigan Pioneer Collections (Lansing, 1907), Volume 8.

"We started September 12, 1831, from the home of their father, with some household goods. One of Henry's children, Fred, was just recovering from a severe illness and had to be carried on a pillow as far as Poughkeepsie, where the teams left us. We were on board a sloop that night on the Hudson River, and the next night arrived at Albany, then we were on the canal boat, I think, nearly two weeks before we reached Buffalo; then a long rough passage across Lake Erie. Twice we had to put back a long ways on account of the head winds. I do not now remember the name of the vessel, but the captain's name was [Blake]. There was but one lady on board except myself who did not suffer from sea-sickness. The captain took us on deck to see some places of interest and said we would make good sailors.

"Arriving in Detroit we bought a yoke of oxen for which we paid one hundred dollars. They were very large ones, and one thing I especially remember about them-they were terribly afraid of Indians. They always had to be chained to a tree when any Indians were passing. The brothers brought a wagon with them which they put together at Detroit and loaded up with their chests of beddings, clothing, etc., their wives and children on top, and started for (Saline or) Lodi as there they had a cousin. The men walked most of the way as the road were nearly impassable, often having to unload the livestock and pry the wagons out of the mudholes, the hand-spikes laying quite thick along the way where other teamsters had used them. But they kept up good courage making cheerful comment on the little log huts that began to appear along the way, and especially the women had plenty of time during that long, slow ride to make a great many calculations for the future, which, of course, were not all realized.

"In due time we arrived at Mr. [Arba] Hurd's home. There the women and children stayed and the men in company with Smith Lapham (who was surveyor) and some others started out to hunt for land on which to make ourselves homes in this wilderness. They located lots in different parts of Washtenaw County, but finally settled in the township of Sharon, which they helped to name. They were afterwards joined by two other brothers, Nicholas and John. The name "Row Settlement" was given to this location, where they all lived many years in great harmony and prosperity. There they raised families to men and women. Four of the brothers are gone and all their wives but one. Their remains lie in the old churchyard near what has been known for many years as Row's Corners."

[The three brothers who came first were, all born Amenia, Dutchess Co., New York: Henry Row, b. 16 Dec 1794, d. 9 Aug 1875; Conrad Row, b. 19 Dec 1797, d. 27 Jul 1838; Gilbert, b. 12 Apr 1802, d. 5 Sep 1866. Nicholas Row d. 11 Oct 1841 ae 52.11.3. John died at Hanover, Jackson County, in October 1878, aged nearly 87 years.]

WILLIAM AND SARAH GILLET BOWERS OF SHARON TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN

By Kay Harris Kriegsman, Ph.D.

William Bowers (b. 6 June 1820 - d. 31 October 1903) was born in Tichwell, King County, England, the son of William and Sarah (Grosvenor) Bowers. William, the son, went to sea at age 14 as an apprentice English seaman. (He was referred to as "Captain" by his granddaughter, Mary Bowers.) He left Lynn, England, and arrived in Buffalo, New York, in June 1836. His citizenship papers, which were affirmed by Amasa Gillet and Leonard Fellows, were finalized in Ann Arbor, Michigan on 5 June 1844. Little is known about William's life except as reported in a few family letters.

William married Sarah Gillet (b. 6 February 1821 - d. 10 April 1900). Sarah, a descendant of the founding fathers of Windsor, Connecticut, was born in Hopewell (?), Ontario County, New York. According to an undated memoir by her daughter-in-law, Clara Collar Bowers, Sarah traveled by covered wagon to Michigan where her parents, Amasa and Esther (Dunn) Gillet, "homesteaded and bought a large tract of land in Washtenaw County before Michigan was admitted to the Union." Collar wrote that "Sarah Gillet was a small girl when she came with her family to Michigan. She and her sister Althea (sic) (Jim Robison's mother) enjoyed the novelty of the trip." An unsigned, undated typscript in Anna Bamberg Bowers' papers described Sarah further: "Sarah was next to the youngest but the mother's health failing the cares of the family early were hers to bear so that the older brothers as well as the sister who is younger came to her for counsel and comfort as to a mother." In early life she joined the Methodist church.

The Bowers and the Robisons bought land from the Gillet trust fund and in Sharon Township they established their homes. William and Sarah lived in a large, brick English-style home on their land the rest of their lives.

William and Sarah, married 5 June 1845, had eight children, three of whom survived to adulthood:

Helen Frances	28 Aug 1846 - 31 May 1850
Alice Esther	17 Sep 1848 - 10 Apr 1913
Susan Alene	11 Dec 1851 - 20 Apr 1859
Harriet Emily	18 Jan 1854 - 1 Jun 1855
George Edmond	1 Sep 1857 - 9 Jun 1918
Phebe Ann	22 Mar 1859 - 3 Mar 1860
Stephen Edgar	8 Mar 1861 - 30 Dec 1861
Elmer Ellsworth	17 Nov 1862 - 2 Feb 1918

In a letter dated 30 December 1927, to George E. Bowers, Jr., James A. Robison, son of Altha Gillet Robison, recounted memories of William and Sarah:

"Some of his old English folk songs ring in my ears as I write. One, my sister Gertrude and I still greatly cherish and will never be forgotten by us - his wonderfully quaint and melodious 'Lavender' song:

When the sun comes over the hills
And the sky larx sings so cheerily,
I my little basket fills
And trudge along my way so merrily.
Light my basket, light my heart;
I can smile at cupid's dart:
I keep my father, my sister, my brother
By trudging along to sell my lavender.
Ladies buy it, come, come try it,
Never saw so sweet a lavender;
Ladies buy it, come try it,
Come and buy my lavender.

"Your grandfather and grandmother - my Aunt Sarah who was second to my mother - are very cherished memories." In addition to his singing and sea tales, his grandchildren remembered his horse "Charley" with fondness.

William was given a gold-headed cane inscribed "Captain William Bowers" by his neighbors on his golden wedding anniversary.

A grandchild, Lorena Jones, spoke of Sarah Gillet Bowers later in life when Sarah's son George would visit her son Elmer's family. "There was a certain chair Uncle George usually sat in, and Grandma would have me get it and place it beside her so that when he sat down he would sit beside her." Jones continued that, when George became an editor and publisher in Iowa, "Grandma, Grandpa and Alice used to read the editorials first of all when the Iowa paper came."

William and Sarah are buried in the Gillet Cemetery, Sharon Township, Washtenaw County, Michigan, with Emily, Helen, Alene, Phebe, Edgar, Alice, and Elmer and his wife. The Gillet and Robison plots are located nearby.

[Kay Harris Kriegsman is the granddaughter of John Morgan Harris and the great-great-grandaughter of George E. Bowers.]

THE ADAM LEHMAN FAMILY OF SHARON TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN

By Ira A. Lehman, Plymouth, Michigan

Johann Adam Lehman, born 23 May 1803 in Altensteig, Würtemberg, and Veronika Schaible Lehman, born 27 May 1810, were in mid-life with many family responsibilities when they decided to leave Germany and make a new home in the U.S.A. Married in Simmersfeld 19 April 1831, they had long made their home in Frünfbronn. It was there the six children who traveled with their parents to Michigan were born:

Johann Michael	8 Apr 1832
Christian Gottlieb	19 Jul 1834
Johannes	6 May 1838
Jacob Frederick	22 Dec 1840
Anna Maria	14 Dec 1843
Veronika	22 May 1850

The Lehman family had for several years watched friends and neighbors from the Würtemberg area leave for Michigan. A letter causing much interest had come in the spring of 1830 from J. H. Mann to his brother-in-law, Emanuel Josenhans, of Stuttgart. Mr. Mann and Frederick Schilling crossed Lake Erie in the autumn of 1829 in search of a new home in the Territory of Michigan. They were advised by Daniel F. Allmendinger, living near Dansville, New York, to visit Washtenaw County where he had already purchased land from the government in Lodi Township. Mr. Mann recommended the area and said immigrants could come via New York, the Erie Canal, and Lake Erie.

"Mr. Josenhans circulated the letter amongst the peasantry in the neighborhood of Stuttgart. The consequence was that numerous immigration was started for Michigan by a class of small farmers and mechanics who had very limited means."[1] Mr. Schilling purchased land in Scio Township, and Mr. Mann bought a tannery in Ann Arbor from Harvey Austin in 1830. He was one of the first German residents in Ann Arbor.

The Lehman family left Würtemberg in mid-June in 1852 and arrived in New York September the 6th. They went from their home in Frünfbronn to Heidelberg, and then by boat on the Neckar River to Mannheim. They changed to a boat on the Rhine River and reached Rotterdam in three or four days. There was a delay of about two weeks in Rotterdam before they set sail July 12, and arrived in New York Sunday, September 6, 1852.

From Martha Leeman's notes, taken during an interview with her father, we learn more of the trip to Sharon Township. "Waited on boat about a week to get permission to come a shorter way as a mistake had been made in the pass and boat was bound for Chesapeake. Then sailed up the Hudson and took a train at Albany for Dunkirk, sailed to Detroit in the night, came to Ann Arbor. Hired a man to take them to Grandmother's half brother's home in Freedom. Stayed about two weeks. Stayed in a log house on Kellar place till spring. C. G. (Gottleib) began work for James Davidson November 19, 1852. Spring of 1853 moved into James Davidson's house (log) and stayed for two years."

The James Davidson log house was on the north side of the road (now Lehman Road) across from a barn and a natural spring. It appears from available records and memories that between 1853 and 1868 Adam's oldest son, J. M. (Michael or Mike), acquired 100 acres or more including a house and a couple of barns, possibly from John or Franklin Everett, on the south side of Lehman Road and also 40 acres from Henry Davidson, son of James Davidson, on the north side. The eastern tip of that 40 acres is where the Davidson log house stood.

It must be noted here that the original spelling of this family name in Würtemberg was Lehmann. In Michigan some of the family members kept the spelling and others used only one "n". Christian Gottlieb changed the name even more by using "Leeman" as his surname.

In 1860 Gottlieb bought 80 acres at the west end of Lehman Road and on the west side of Sylvan Road for $400.00. Later he bought 45 acres across Sylvan Road east of the 80 acres. The 45 acres was on both the north and south sides of Lehman Road. Probably he, his wife, Paulina Merkel, and their family lived there until 1868.

Adam and his sons, Fred and Michael, bought in 1867 the 125 acres from Gottlieb. Two houses were on this land: one in the orchard on the west side of Sylvan Road where Adam and Veronika lived and one on the east side. It is here that Fred and his wife, Alice Peckens, daughter of a pioneer Washtenaw family, lived with their children. Also in 1867 Gottlieb bought from James Davidson the farm east of Michael's on Lehman Road.

Michael married Anna Mary Walz and their farm was passed on to their son Jacob who later sold it to Mike's nephew, Elmer C. Lehman. It was designated a Michigan Centennial Farm about 1960 or soon after.

Gottlieb's farm was passed on to son John C. and then to his children. Gottlieb's great-granddaughter, Mary Leeman, still lives in the nice stone house built by James Davidson about 1840. It was designated a Michigan Centennial Farm in 1967.

Frederick and John both fought in the Civil War; John, a single man, died in the Battle of the Wilderness. Fred's farm was passed on to his son Homer and was sold to a non-relative after his death in 1950.

Anna Marie married Henry Reno, a farmer, and resided in Sharon Township the remainder of her life. Veronika married William Fletcher and also lived in Sharon Township. The last child of Adam and Veronika Lehman, Martin, born in Sharon 22 April 1858, married Nettie Spaulding and resided in Williamston, Ingham County, Michigan.

MARRIAGES OF THE REV. NATHANIEL STACY PERFORMED IN MASSACHUSETTS, NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA AND MICHIGAN, 1805-1868

Abstracted by Helen Graham and Nancy H. Krohn

Nathaniel Michael Stacy was the first resident preacher for the Society of Universalists in Ann Arbor, Michigan, between 1835-1840. He entered the study for the ministry in 1802 and was given fellowship as a minister in 1803. Most of his career was spent in central and western New York and western Pennsylvania.

Stacy was born on December 2, 1778, in New Salem, Massachusetts, the fifth of seven children born to Rufus Stacy and his second wife, Anna Day. In 1806, he married Susan Clark of New Salem. Eight children were born to this union: Nathaniel, Maria, Susan, Edwin, Walter, Mary, Charlotte, and Clarinda.

Nathaniel Stacy died in Columbus, Warren County, Pennsylvania on April 4, 1868. His memoirs were published in 1850. This volume, Memoirs of the Life of Nathaniel Stacy, Preacher of the Gospel of Universal Grace, may be found in the Book Division of the Clements Library (call number: C2 1850 Stacy).

This biographical sketch of Nathaniel Stacy was abstracted by Shirley C. Stevens from a very interesting and informative biography of the minister that was compiled by Kathleen Koehler, a staff assistant at the William L. Clements Library, The University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan. The library has granted our Society the permission to publish the marriage register of Nathaniel Stacy, 1805-1868.

SOME TEACHERS OF EVERETT SCHOOL, SHARON TOWNSHIP, WASHTENAW COUNTY, MICHIGAN

This list of some teachers of School District #4 Fractional, known as Everett School, is found in the Michigan Historical Collections at Bentley Historical Library, The University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A history of the school was prepared in 1941, with the help of the teacher and neighbors, by these school children: Robert Louis, Raymond George, and Ruth Jeanette Alber; Norrene June Watson; James Walter Hone; Leora, Dewey James, Alice Arlene, and Virginia Ileene Van Riper. The school was located near the intersection of Grass Lake Road and Chelsea-Manchester Road in Section 2 of Sharon Township. According to a family history by Miss Jessie Everett, the school was named for the Everett families. Mr. and Mrs. John Everett moved from Ann Arbor in 1833 and took up land just south of Everett school. In the early days school was held in log homes. The first school building was frame, as was the second, built in 1889 at almost the same location and in the same shape.
